

Biographies

Sandy Allnock is an artist, author, Bible journaler, and dogmom living in the Seattle area. She's been teaching for a decade, inspiring people around the world to explore their God-given creativity . . . even those who thought they left it in kindergarten!

As an artist with a love for God, Sandy Allnock's life looked good on the outside. Her inner life, however, was filled with shame and embarrassment over her faith walk. But decades spent waiting in the wilderness for the Lord to answer her prayers were all ended – in one instant.

Sandy was introduced to creative worship while in a church service, when she saw something that no one else seemingly did – a man drawing in his Bible. This began an exploration of Bible Journaling that changed her prayer life, her ability to share her faith with others, and most importantly, transformed her relationship with Jesus.

With vulnerability, humor, and Biblical stories, Sandy reveals simple but powerful truths she has discovered along her journey. She has a gift for encouraging her audiences to see the creative gifts God has given them—and take steps of faith in that direction. She inspires renewed passion for studying God's Word and “seeing” the Scriptures in a whole new way.